She is also a member of Kappa Delta Pi, Off-Campus Women's Association, homecoming attendant in 1954, vice-president of the junior class and she was the highest ranking student in her freshman year in college.

Hamerlinck is a sophomore working towards a major in social studies and a minor in physical education. He is president of the Veterans club and a member of the artist's (convocation) committee.

Some of the duties of the homecoming co-chairmen are to contact the bands who march in the parade, make arrangements with the city for the parade and in the securing of lights, get students organized to work on different committees such as the Queen's committee, and draw up the rules for the Queen candidates.

Fall Term Brings Changes In Faculty

Three faculty members on leave of absence will return, two others will take sabbatical leaves, and the appointment of at least five new persons to the staff pretty much describes the faculty changes at MSTC for the coming school year.

John Jenkins, former dean of men; Roy J. Domek, athletic coach; and Mason R. Boudrye, science instructor, all will return from sabbatical leaves.

Fritz Bierhaus, acting athletic director, and Miss Karen Kivi, assistant librarian, will be on leave of absence for further study.

Miss Matilda Williams, art department head, retires at the end of the academic year. Nels N. Johnson becomes the new art department head. This leaves a vacancy in the art department that remains to be filled during the summer.

Jenkins returns after a year of graduate study at the University of North Dakota to be the director of student affairs; Dr. Amos Maxwell receives the appointment of dean of men; and Miss Moen, was appointed dean of women. Each of these three will also carry half time teaching loads.

Domek returns from the University of Colorado, where he completes work on his advanced degree, to be athletic director.

Boudrye returns after a year of graduate work at the University of Minnesota to take up his duties as a science teacher. Mr. Tasch, who took Boudrye's place this year, remains as a member of the division of science and mathematics.

McCleod will continue as head basketball coach and will also take Bierhaus' place as the director of the men's dormitory.

MiSTiC Congratulates 1955 Dragon Staff

Congratulations are in order for the yearbook editor, Norma Hoving, assistant editors, Daisy McKenzie and Chell Soeth, and business manager, John Ness and also the entire staff for the tremendous job they did on the 1955 Dragon.

This year's annual is truly a credit to those who spent many, many long hours working on the yearbook and also to the school itself.

Especially commendable was the photography which was done by Ham Gillespie. The arrangement and content were excellent and also deserve much praise.

If your opinion of the yearbook is the same as ours, why not express it personally to the members of the staff.

'Prefer No Script' Says One Senior

by Pat Ferris

A glassy-eyed freshman girl wandered up to a pompous-looking senior the other day, stuck out a fist full of paper, and timidly asked him, "Would you please write in my 1955 year-book?"

Little did she know that we do not follow this practice in college. Since college is more of a personal experience than a group experience we do not take the policy of writing in each others year-books. College also lacks the group sentiment that we find in high school.

Yes, the memories, friends, and fine moments are there, but the sentiment is lacking. We can laugh and think of times and individuals, but our year-books seem to take on a more sacred tone, too sacred for the script of our friends.

Norma Hoving and her helpers put out an excellent Dragon this year, but we as students are a critical race of people; therefore, we often look for the bad points of something before we notice the good ones. Among the negative criticisms of the 1955 Dragon are:

(1) "It should contain more script." The people who have pondered a little and have come up with this comment are perfectly justified in their taste, but perhaps they do not realize that there is only a limited amount of room on a page.

It is also more important that the names of the people in the various pictures be placed on the page. If the name, and the face are familiar we can write our own script from memory. (Often script that would not be printable in a year-book).

(2) "It should be bigger so that each organization and activity gets more attention." This also is a good argument, but due to a shortage of funds and the difficulty of getting organizations together for pictures it seems to be a problem of taste that can not be easily solved.

(3) "The names of organizations were placed in the wrong spot in one or two instances." This too is a small matter. If people are greatly disturbed at this they can pencil in the correct name or draw arrows.

In relations to constructive criticism about the Dragon, many people have expressed their admiration for the fine photography. These comments have true justification because the pictures and designs in this book are very artistic. Mr. Ham Gillespie spent a lot of time figuring out angles and shadows before he took each shot. His work should be commended.

Many have also commented about the modernistic style of writing in this year-book. This, we can believe, is also typical of the large amount of work that went into making this book.

Much more could be said pro and con for this book, but the best place for these statements depends upon the individual. Let us hope they overlook the bad to appreciate the good.

Senior Tells Freshmen: School Is One Big Bowling Alley

by Arlene Fischer

TO A FRESHMAN

Do you feel like you are just about to make a strike? That's the way a senior feels when his hands begin itching for that diploma.

It's just like bowling. As a freshman you lift up the ball and the load is terribly heavy. The goal seems so far away and you aren't sure you should even try.

You put on your bowling shoes (freshman registering at MSTC) and then you walk to the head of the lane (you sit in classes for the first day). The pins (assignments) are all lined up waiting to be knocked down.

You swing the ball (your first assignments) and you make a strike (right off the bat, you get a couple A's). But, freshman, you are being fooled. Strikes don't come that easy.

The game rolls on (the year elapses). The ball flutters to the gutter (the C's creep to D's). You are slumping. You swear that if you get just one more gutter ball (one more D) you will quit.

Before you try again you eat your wheaties (you crack a book).

Now you are all set to try again. The ball seems lighter (the test questions are easier to answer). You throw a curve right down the middle and it's a strike! (an A).

Now you are a sophomore and still eating your wheaties (school work is fine). You have a few ups and downs that year with gutter balls and all, but it levels off to about a C average.

As a junior, you are on your seventh line. You think you have it made in the shade. It might be shady, but you haven't got it made. That old curve just won't break (the apple won't take on a polish either). You wish that you would have spent that last two bits on a bowl of wheaties instead of a drink of water last night, but what's really more important, the wheaties or the water? At any rate you lose that lane.

You fall into a depressive, heatless wave, but that's good because in a state of deep depression is when you do your most serious thinking.

It's the eighth line now (a last quarter junior). You are all cooled off and the old curve has come back to you (your brain waves are tallying a steady, even beat). You pull through that year fine.

Now that you are a senior and in your last two lines, nothing can possibly go wrong. You are dead serious about reaching that goal. You work hard, you try hard, and like a hard nut, you aren't going to crack.

Then, you pour on the effort. After working, sweating, slaving, cooling down and heating up again you finally win.

Yes, freshman, a graduating senior holds that sweet, wonderful feeling of an exciting climax.

Elite Senior

by Betsy Robinson

Trying to find someone as busy as Alex Karmarkovic is a difficult task. Alex, as many of you know, is the pastor of the Moorhead Assembly of God Church.

Because his work takes up so much time in addition to his school studies, Alex finds it necessary to budget his time. Finding enough time for everything is one of his major problems.

For example, last week Alex delivered a talk in Fosston, Minnesota, Tuesday evening, Wednesday evening was spent at a church service. Thursday he prepared for his church's half-hour radio program which he directs as well as delivering the main message. Then on Friday evening he journeyed to Sisseton, South Dakota, where he talked at a junior-senior banquet.

In addition to this well-filled schedule, there are hospital and home calls to make, telephone calls to answer, and four or five sermons to prepare for the mid-week and Sunday services and other talks. After last week's radio broadcast, the Karmarkovics received 69 cards and letters which all required answering. Alex credits his wife Ruth as a great help in his work.

Alex does most of his studying after church services and after his evening duties, from about 10 p.m. to 12:30 or 1 a.m. Extra studying before tests requires making extra time available in the afternoons.

Another responsibility is the Karmarkovic family — two daughters, Carolyn Ann, 11, and Gloria Ruth, 8, who attend the Riverside school. Alex recalls with amusement the time two years ago when his daughters won the snowman contest. The reason he remembers it so well is that he helped them and droze his ears in the process.

When Alex started MSTC two years ago, he was going to take just a few subjects. He has gradually added more so that now he takes a full academic load. By attending summer classes, he has fulfilled requirements for a bachelor of science degree which he will soon receive.

He recalls how excited his youngest daughter, then 6, was when her "daddy" started MS. While visiting her uncle, she was asked where her father was, to which she happily replied, "My daddy started high school today." Alex says he is still teased about going to "high school."

While at MS, Alex has been active in Kappa Delta Pi, Inter-Varsity, intramural sports, president of Alpha Phi Gamma, worked on the MiSTiC staff, lettered in tennis, and was chosen a Grey Gown Usher last spring. He has a social studies major and a broad English and literature minor.

A graduate of North Central Bible Institute, Alex feels that one of the

Musical, 'Three For The Show' Coming To Local Theater

Starting Sunday May 22, The Towne theater will show a musical "Three for the Show," starring Jack Lemmon, Betty Grable, and Marge and Gower Champion. The story centers around Jack Lemmon, who plays a Broadway composer, wed to musical star Betty Grable; he returns home after being reported killed in action, to get the low down on life for four in a love nest for two. The dancing of Marge and Gower Champion adds much to the production.

Following "Three for the Show," the Towne theater will show "Shotgun," starring Sterling Hayden and Yvonne De Carlo. Hayden is a deputy United States marshal tracking a killer who had killed Hayden's superior officer by shotgun. It is by shotgun the deputy is to get his man. "Shotgun," will show from Saturday May 28 to May 31.

Kirk Douglas, Jeanne Crain and Claire Trevor star in "Man without a Star," at the Fargo Theater May 19-25. Jeanne Crain departs from the "sweet girl" role to play a determined ranch owner. Kirk Douglas plays the part of ranch hand in the employ of Jeanne Crain. The story evolves around a not always so legal ranching business.

Hopes To Visit Palestine

highest honors he has had was to be selected class speaker by his graduating class. In that capacity he addressed 35,000-40,000 people in the Minneapolis Municipal Auditorium at Commencement exercises.

Following his graduation, Alex was an itinerant evangelist pastor for two years. He traveled through Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, and Pennsylvania delivering sermons and giving chalk talks. His first pastorate was in Princeton, Minnesota. From there he came to Moorhead.

Although he says he now sticks to golf, tennis, and some baseball, Alex enjoys all sports. He was active in football, track, and baseball in high school, and traveled for a time with a baseball league in northern Ohio. At one time he was also horseshoe champion in his home town.

Another hobby that gives him a great deal of pleasure is drawing. He attended night classes at Oberlin College and took correspondence courses in art. This training led to his later illustrating several religious books. He has also used his art to add interest at church meetings by illustrating hymns in colored chalk and giving the pictures to those who brought the most people to the meeting.

When in high school, Alex and two friends were discussing the type of work they would do after they graduated. Though they came to no conclusions, the three agreed that preaching would be the dulllest kind of work there could be. They went on to decide that if any of them should ever become preachers, the one who was least likely to be one was Alex.

Since then, of course, Alex has changed his attitude considerably. He now says, "I feel it's the most satisfying work one can do, especially because of the personal contacts I have." He feels his training in teachers education at MS is very helpful, particularly when he has teachers' training for the Sunday school teachers once a year.

The Karmarkovics have done a great deal of traveling, usually during the summers, and have visited most of the United States and part of Canada.

Alex's main desire now is to go to Palestine to see first hand the historical scenes from the Bible. We hope his wish will be satisfied soon, for it couldn't happen to a more deserving person.

Dragons Make Clean Sweep In Jamestown Double-Header

Stellar pitching from Don Betzen and reliefer Lyle Howg, together with fair hitting and several Jamestown errors, enabled the MSTC Dragons to gain a sweep in their doubleheader at Jamestown Thursday afternoon and evening. The Dragons won the first one 12-0 and with a seven run eighth inning were able to win the nightcap, 9-3.

Betzen and Howg combined to pitch three hit ball in shutting out the Jimmies in the afternoon affair. Betzen worked the first three innings and Howg took the remaining four after the Dragons had built up a comfortable 10-0 lead. The win goes to Howg since starter Betzen did not work the required five innings.

Betzen fanned three and walked three while Howg fanned four and walked none. The win was the junior lefthander's first after appearing in a starting role and a relief assignment.

Darrel Hesby and Don Torgerson led the 10 hit Dragon attack with two singles each. A wild fourth inning, in which the Dragons scored nine runs, was too much for starter Wes Kessler who suffered the defeat after pitching respectable ball for three innings.

WIN NIGHTCAP

With the score one-sided in the afternoon affair, Coach Larry MacLeod was able to call on Don Betzen once again. The righthander came through with his fifth mound triumph and his ninth in a row in two years of pitching, as he hurled three hit ball to help the Dragons to a 9-3 win.

The Dragons needed a seven run eighth inning to win the game after being held to a 2-2 dealock by Don Kleven for seven innings. The former Jimmie basketball captain and all-conference man held the Dragons to two lone singles in seven innings then became wild in the eighth.

The Dragons had a single by Bill Iverson as the leadoff man in the first inning. He went to third on a wild pitch and then a passed ball. Kleven then settled down and pitched his way out of trouble. In the second the Dragons found their only other hit with one out when Bill Beck beat out a groundball down third base. He went to second on a wild pitch but was stranded with the next two batters flying out.

The Jimmies broke loose for two runs in the third when a single by Norm Batterberry scored Kleven who was on by an error and Larry Treider who walked.

The Dragons then scored one in the fourth when Marv Olson walked. He stole second, went to third on a passed ball, and scored on a wild pitch.

In the fifth, the Dragons tied the game at 2-2 when with one out Iverson strolled. He swiped second, and with the catcher making a bad throw on the attempted steal, he was on third, scoring when the centerfielder let the ball get through him.

Kleven walked three straight batters after pinch hitter Gary Smith doubled to start the inning and in came John Engbrecht. His control was no better, and his mates were erratic defensively.

Betzen fanned 14 and walked four in the victory. Kleven fanned a like number but had trouble with his control as he passed seven and threw four wild pitches which gave him trouble all evening.

The Dragons had only four hits off Kleven and none off Engbrecht. Iverson, Beck, and Darrel Hesby had singles with Smith having a double to start the spark for the Dragons big eighth inning drive.

Jamestown College did come back with a single run in the eighth when three errors score helped Clair Baker who was on by a fielder's choice when Norm Batterberry was forced at second.

BetteJo's Softball Team On Top With Two Wins

by Vivian Floberg

The latest results in Girl's Intramural softball reveal that BetteJo's team is in top standing with two wins and no losses. The Pi's and Beta's are tied with one win and one loss apiece, the Gam's have two losses.

In the last game, BetteJo's edged the Beta's for a final score of 17-16. Janet Swanson was out front with a homerun for the Beta's. Jo Greenfield led the BetteJo's with three homeruns. She really shook the Beta pitcher.

Bette Reyes was on the mound for the BetteJo's team and Anna Varriano pitched for the Beta's. This game was played close and hard, and both teams deserve credit for their skill and spirit.

The Pi Mu Phi's wiped out, the Gamma Nu's with a final score of 15-4. With a good lead, the Pi's replaced their pitcher Carol Hvidsten and put Viv Floberg on the mound. Jo Sater pitched for the Gamma Nu's.

Thanks go to the men who ump our games—Hal Holman and Frank Lie-denfrost.

Darlene Tweten, who is minoring in recreation, is doing a lot of work to get these games scheduled and run off smoothly. She deserves all the credit we can give for her contributions.

There seem to be a number of girls who think they are not 'good enough' to play in these intramural games. If that is your outlook, come out and see us play. We are far from professional standing, but we have a lot of fun. Keep this in mind when the intramurals begin again next fall.
